Agnew Sees U.S. Aid to Greece As 'Security'

By WALTER R. MEARS — ATHENS (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says that the face of congressional opposition to the President's aid to Greece, he left him an option to exercise Premier George Papadopoulos leaves President Nixon's authority to override it "would have without question," the vice president said.

Agnew said that Greece is an "absolutely essential line of mitigation of a continuation that the President is going to in the face of congressional opposition," he said.

Because the Congress has Agnew said he is convinced which I think he will exercise "intends to return his country," the vice representative government," and added that the president
